Morgellons Disease: Symptoms, Fibers, Treatments, and More

Multiple studies report a possible link between Morgellons and infection with Borrelia spirochetes. These results contradict an earlier study by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), which concluded that the condition isn't caused by an infection or parasites. The CDC study of 115 people with Morgellons, which the CDC refers to as an unexplained dermatopathy, showed that most of the fibers in the skin wounds were cotton.
