Abstract. This book examines a hitherto neglected genre of literature, and provides an analysis of both eighteenth-century urban culture and local historical scholarship. It challenges the conventional view that by the eighteenth century antiquarian studies had stagnated and lost their vigour. On the contrary, positive advances were made in the field of local history and medieval scholarship.

The cogency of urban history as a framework for historical inquiry, however, remains powerful and it continues to evolve in new directions. As South Asia, China and parts of Africa undergo unprecedented urbanisation, the study of urban history is losing its Eurocentric focus and is instead taking on an increasingly global perspective.

To write an urban history was an act of local piety and an expression of identity, but while local patriotism was an important consideration, there was also a widespread recognition that towns and cities were crucial agents of historical change. Towns, and the growth of a commercial economy, had undermined the feudal system of unfree labour.
